The Lake County Zoning Board of Appeals gave the "thumbs down" to the Antioch Country Club late Tuesday afternoon at the Waukegan County Building.

By a 4-1 vote (with one abstention) the Board moved to deny the petition of developer Thomas Santino for a conditional use permit for a planned unit development.

The motion was entered by Robert J. Webb of Antioch, who also voted to deny the petition.

The unfavorable recommendation will now go to the Lake County Board of Supervisors for a final vote. The group may make a ruling at their next regularly scheduled meeting to be held July 11 at 9:30 a.m.

SATURDAY NOON DEADLINE

Due to the 4th of July holiday, we ask that all news and advertising be brought to the Antioch News office before Saturday noon. Weekend news, of course, will be due by Monday noon.

WELLS ADDRESSES CHAMBER LUNCHEON

Members of the Antioch Chamber of Commerce were formally introduced to new Police Chief Jack Wells at the Chamber's luncheon-meeting held June 26th at the Antioch Country Club.

Wells, who was appointed to the post on June 1st after a 20 year hitch with the State Police gave a detailed address to the members on his first month of duty.

The greying World War II veteran began his briefing by bringing the members up fo date on areas he considered of major importance when he took office.

Concerning the situation that he inherited, Wells said "any morale problems that existed have been alleviated. We now have good morale in the ranks."

Wells was referring to alleged internal strife which had developed over the Police Benevolent Fund and forced the retirement of former Chief Jack Davis.

He explained that he personally, along with other members of the department had visited the member businesses soliciting donations and detailing in full the workings of the fund.

Wells also explained that in keeping with his wishes the village board had given him "as free a hand as possible" in dealing with police matters.

that since assuming office he had codified and instituted regulations regarding police procedure and conduct.

In addition, he has added one new officer (Patrolman Steve Townsend), while naming Sgt. Elmer Pett Juvenile Officer and Patrolman Chuck Miller as his assistant.

In speaking of the newest member of the force, Wells noted that the addition "brings the village department up to minimum standards."

He explained that one officer Taylor was running into probper 1,000 population was an Along these lines Wells noted - acceptable ratio and that during the summer months the population swells to between 12,000 and 15,000 persons.

Wells said that the so-called "station adjustment" program for juveniles was being ironed out and would be finalized within the near future.

Prior to Well's address Mrs. Barbara Owens, Chamber-Secretary gave the group a short synopsis of Chamber planning.

She noted that the Beautification Committee chaired by Ron lems, but with luck could begin their project on Main Street some time this summer.

In addition to the beautification, Mrs. Owens listed the dates for Chamber sponsored events. "Maxwell Street Days" will occur on July 27-29, while "Mid-Nite Madness" is billed for August 21.

At the conclusion of the meeting Joseph T. Rush, News Editor-Publisher and professional photographer presented the Chamber with color portraits of current president Hilliard Tobieski and past presidents Grant Spong and LaVerne Woods.

HOUSING ON PLAN COMMISSION DOCKET

Housing developments will again fall under the scrutiny of the Antioch Village Plan Commission, at the group's July 7 meeting.

The Commission will give their recommendation on two new developments due to a referral from the Antioch Village Board. The Board was presented the proposals at the regulr monthly meeting, held Monday, June 19.

Plan Commission Chairman Robert Bemis indicated that the two parcels to be considered are owned by Murrill "Missouri' Cunningham and by William Curnes.

The first parcel would contain a proposed two building-42 unit apartment or condominium complex near Main St. which runs west to Cunningham Drive by Sequoit Creek. In addition to a recommendation on housing, the Plan group will study the acceptability of extending R-5, multiple use zoning, to a small section of he property. The majority of the property already has such zoning.

At their June 19 meeting, Village Board members indicated they had no opposition to the proposal. Strangely enough, the property contains a portion of Cunningham Drive, which was never officially dedicated as a village street. Following this disclosure Cunningham and the Board reached a "mutually agreeable solution."

The second proposed development is comprised of 23 acres, lying west of the Village Green Subdivision. This project is also seeking R-5 multiple use zoning.

Bemis has appointed two committees of commission members to research the projects and brief the entire

Members of the teams researching the Cunningham Project are: Roman Vos. Chairman; Lester Zitkus, and Jerry Rockow.

Studying the Curnes property are Chairman Marge Nelson, Dale Frosch, and Lewis Simon.

Spirit And Dedication

In this year of 1972, we as a nation and people will be celebrating the 196th anniversary of our first act as a national body: the Declaration of Independence.

The celebration comes at a time in our history when the possibility of not seeing a 296th celebration is no longer a distant possibility, but if the trend continues, could be a distinct probability.

The problems we face today are no more perplexing than those that faced our Founding Fathers 196 years ago. Perhaps they are only better publicized.

In reality, issue for issue, we are no worse off than the thirteen jealous and suspicious colonies. Facing them a war against the strongest empire in history, part time patriots, a bankrupt treasury and many other seemingly unconquerable problems.

What THAT country had in 1776 and THIS country lacks in 1972 is spirit.

It would appear, on the surface at least, that the drive desire and inspiration that had been the decisive factor in making our nation free may be lacking in order to keep it so.

In this era of overabundant self concern and personal caution, the focus has shifted from a national view to an individual view. Instead of -What Is Best For The Country? - we have - How Best Will The Decision Serve Me?

Those men who affixed their name and gambled their lives on the declaration could and never would have been promised us freedom from worry and hassle.

Instead they created a viable constitution and institution which with prudent attention would serve us all and afford us the mechanics to solve our problems.

What America most urgently needs is not tax reform, space probes or law and order (although we do need them all). What America needs is a firm resolve to work for the betterment of the nation.

What we need is not a New Deal, New Frontier or Great Society, but a return of spirit. The spirit that made this country great and whose absence has made it impotent.

We call on all Americans to solemnize a pledge to work for a better America in the years to come. So that 1976 can truely be a year of celebration rather than merely one of observance.

Letters to the Editor on any current issues are welcome. Only letters with names can be considered for this column. Signatures will be withheld on request. Letters cannot be returned and are subject to minor editing.

Our Congressman

An ABM site in Libertyville Township and the recent Moscow Accords, on strategic weapons are far more intimately-connected than their remote geographical separation would suggest. The ABM furor which stirred alarm about 3 years ago when it was proposed to locate a "Sentinel" ABM facility near Libertyville seemed to have been placed permanently on the shelf when the modified "Safeguard system was approved. This meant that the nearest ABM facility would be sited in a remote area of South Dakota.

The President's recent agreements growing out of the Strategic Arms Limitations Talks (SALT) would bar deployment of additional ABM systems and would place limits on a number of offensive nuclear weapons.

Basic to the agreements which the President was able to negotiate successfully were the strengths of our present defense position, including the earlier Congressional approval of our ABM defenses and funds for our offensive strategic capability.

The most frequent question asked-one which was proposed by Senator Fulbright at the recent White House "briefing"-was the need for substantial financial expenditures in the face of the reduced tensions which the SALT agreements have produced. The Administration position was explained fully last week by Secretary of Defense Laird as well as by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Admiral Thomas Moorer, both of whom emphasized the importance of funds for "Trident Missile launching submarines and for B-l strategic bombers in maintaining our national defense posture.

In the event that such defense weaponry is not authorized, Secretary Laird declared he "would welcome a return to the old 12-site antimissile defense system-originally recommended by this Administration." This, indeed, would revive the issue of an ABM facility in Libertyville Township.

The Congress is both peaceminded and economy-minded. Senate ratification of the ABM treaty and House and Scnate approval of the agreement relating to various offensive nuclear weapons are high on the list of Congressional priorities. Also, reduction of defense expenditures is sought in order that funds may be diverted for domestic purposes.

The President's mission to Moscow must be acknowledged to have been successful because of the position of strength from which he negotiated. This is borne out by the President's own statements when he addressed a Joint Session of the Congress. The President declared then: "Our successes in the strategic arms talks...which opened the road to Moscow, came about because over the past three years we have consistently refused proposals for unilaterally abandoning the ABM..."

In order to maintain the momentum which the SALT agreements have produced, it' seems vital to maintain the strength of our defenses.

Few can question that the missions to Moscow and to Peking carried us a great distance along the road of peace. Consequently, it would seem well to continue the policy which has brought us to this hopeful point in history in order that we may continue to ease tensions and to reach the goal of "a generation of peace." A strong defense, coupled with continued negotiations with the Soviet Union and other military powers, is a logical path toward his goal.

HIT IN THE SHADOWS AND DON'T SPOOK THE FISH

Most vacations are spent in a hectic, head over heels race with the clock to locate and exploit a few days of sightseeing, souvenir hunting or visiting. Often times the would-be vacationers return far more exhausted and frazzled than when they had begun.

With this in mind, three local men set out on a week of relaxation, far from the car horns, tourist traps and resorts that now choke most of what had been America's richest scenic acreage.

Roy Nelson and Stu Good, both teachers at the Antioch High School, in company with NEWS Editor Joseph Rush spent a week of fishing in northern Minnesota. However, in order to cast a single plug, the three intrepid fishermen had to portage streams and lakes and canoe several miles to their favorite spot.

The spot - a small lake in the unspoiled wilderness near the U.S. Canadian border. To reach it, the men drove more than 10 hours and then were faced with the task of carrying everything on their backs for a weeks stay.

The trips began in 1961 when the trio, then all teachers at the high school, backpacked and portaged to a similiarly remote area. In the ensuing years the three have made nine similar trips, often taking along colleagues or sons and daughters.

Even though they are now "old hands" at it, the demands are still strenuous and the first day's labors resulted in aching muscles and an early date with a sleeping bag.

The men carried an 18 foot aluminum canoe, packs weighing 80 - 100 pounds and containing everything from food and blankets to tents, cookware and fishing gear.

Food brought in for the trip was all powdered or freeze dried in plastic bags. The men carried no canned goods or glass that would mar the campsite or bespoil the ecology. When they left there remained no sign of their stay, except perhaps for a few fish scales.

All day was spent in pursuit of the elusive small-mouthed bass.

Evenings (the men stopped fishing at 10:00 p.m.) were spent talking of fishing, the scenery and wildlife. "But never shop talk," said Joe Rush. "We leave our work at home. It's sort of an unwritten law."

"Anyway," he continued, "who can think of work when you're in such a haven."

The area, named the Gun Flint Trail, is a protected natural wilderness with limited access and restrictions. For instance, the region is known as "canoe country." According to law outboard motors are prohibited.

"We saw very few people during the five days we were there," said Rush. "On the average we saw less than four or five people a day."

One of their greatest pleasures was the wildlife and scenery. There were many beaver and wild fowl, plus miles of unspoiled shoreline and rock formations. "It's all so clean," Rush said. "Here nature is still all powerful. Because this is a limited access area and based on the effort you must go through to get here, the only people that come are sportsmen whose only interest is camping and fishing."

"Good campers and fishermen don't wear an area out. There can never be too many."

The men caught numerous bass, but kept only enough for their own needs. "The food tastes much better up there," according to Rush. "In fact, the combination of fresh, clean air and the quiet could be a traumatic experience for some."

Rush said that the three men found pleasure in simple things. "we took no beer or cards." This is apparently another of the unwritten laws the men have.

"It's so refreshing to escape from the stresses and strains of the work world. Up there things are quiet and simple. Simple enough to think."

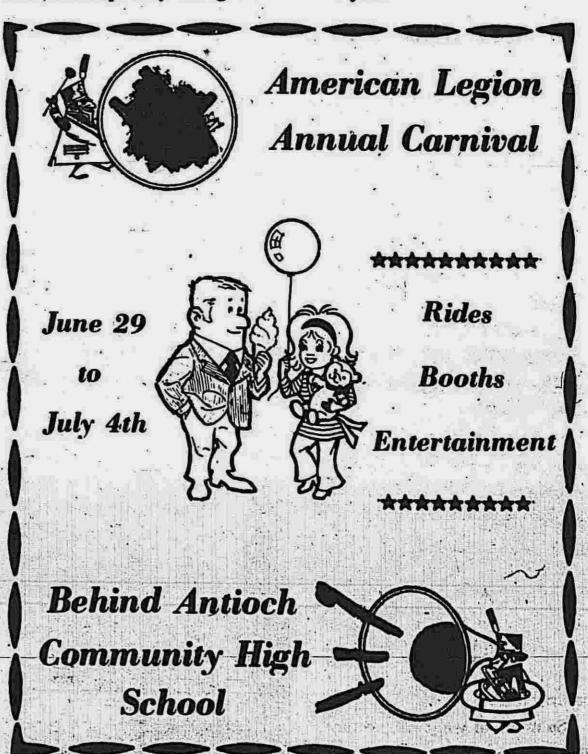

"When you're at home the mind becomes cluttered and bombarded. There, problems are put more into perspective. If you're removed from the immediate strain, you can feel your mind unwind."

Speaking of the beauty of the northern area, Rush said "you have to go up there to really appreciate how miserable the area here is becoming. When we were thirsty we simply dipped a cup in the lake. You couldn't do that here unless you've had a recent typhoid shot."

Even though the trip was shortened by one day because of a torrential downpour the men all feel it was a wonderful experience.

As a final thought Rush said, "the joy of the trip is being there, not trying to bring it back with you."

"You Mean You Can't Cook !

In those glorious days of yesteryear, proper young ladies were expected to be able to cook, sew and keep house. Somehow they pulled it off.

However, it would appear all this has changed. Differing life styles, an acelerated college enrollment rate and the increased demand for technical personnel has shot this conception of the "little woman" full of holes.

The truth of the matter is most girls of today are as perplexed in the kitchen as their mothers had been in the garage. This trend shows no hint of easing and in fact will probably increase in the years to come.

Commenting on this situation, Mrs. Arlene Molinarolo. Home Economics instructor at the Antioch Upper Grade School said, "It's unbelievable what they don't know. Even basic things.'

Mrs. Molinarolo noted that with so many girls college bound or career oriented they have little chance to learn these basic necessary skills.

"Girls going on to college must take courses required for entry and don't have the opportunity to take a course of this nature." she said.

The course attempts to bridge this gap by awakening an interest or providing an awareness of what formerly had been considered universal knowledge. It is a mandatory course offered to seventh and eighth grade girls for one semester a year.

Rather than a traditional Home Ec approach, the class contains a smattering of areas such as food preparation, clothing, personal relationships, grooming and consumer buying.

Mrs. Molinarolo explained that at this age there is more of a chance to make an impression than at the high school level.

"It's a matter of exposure," she said. "Some have had training through 4-H, Girl Scouts or some other program, but the vast majority haven't."

The affable teacher went on to say that with so much emphasis put on academics, the knowledge this course provides could be very important in later life.

'It's a learning by doing course. The girls cook, sew, experiment with make up and acomplish quite a bit during a forty minute.class."

She explained that the emphasis was on exposure and involvement. "I try to use visible examples to teach the girls, while keeping up their interest."

One factor that Mrs. Molinarolo stresses is food preparation. She said she attempts to impress the value of a balanced diet.

"So much of what people buy are snacks and other foods with little nutritionalvalue. We try to make the girls aware of good food planning."

Another aspect of the course is consumer buying. According to Mrs. Molinarolo knowing the psychology of stores can make a big difference in the family budget.

She listed the positioning of the candy aisle (immediately as you enter) and displays (where you are forced to trip over "white elephants") as being basic to a store's "come on."

"You can never be sure just how much they will retain, but hopefully some of it will stick or pop up in their minds later."

While Mrs. Molinarolo wasanxious and eager to explainthe course and the effect on the students, she was noticably quiet in gauging the class's future.

With eyes cast down she told of the course being cut for the fall term.

"It's really a shame for the facilities of the department to lay idle, to say nothing of the loss for the girls."

"It's such a meaningful class. I can understand the position of older people, but I certainly hope enough other people will vote it in so the class can continue."

In Shakespeare's day violets were often eaten with onions and lettuce.

My feet are still tired from the Firemen's Dance Sat. nite! Did you ever see such a great crowd of people to come out on a cool evening for such a good cause? Many familiar faces were seen, and a few of the "Class of 52" ACHS stopped over after their 20 year reunion, which was held at Andre's Steak House in Richmond.

Happy faces at the dance were Gwen and Casey Lulofs who brought along their son, Martin and his wife, Nancy. The young couple are home on leave visiting Martin's folks. He is stationed in service in England. Glad to see you young people.

Otto and Florence Hanke accompanied by Edgar and Lucille Simonsen and Mrs. Kate Verkest motored to Lake of the Ozarks for a weeks vacation with the Frank Verkest Family. While there they enjoyed the Ozark Opry, and a boat ride of the Lake of the Ozarks plus many other points of interest. The following 2 weeks the Hankes spent up in Northern Wisconsin, fishing and touring and relaxing.

Don and Barb Francisco, former Antioch residents have been spending the week with their good friends, Gordon & Laurene Volling of Lake Street. Course they had a very good reason for making the Antioch Scene this week - Their daughter, Barbara Lynn was married to Terence Archer this past Wednesday nite - June 21. From here the two couples will be traveling northward to Castle Rock, Wis. to spend a few days vacation at the Volling cottage.

Joe and Louise Gutowski spent a lovely evening Sunday nite, as they attended the Millrun Theatre which was featuring "Sadler % Young".

Les & Barb Miller of Antioch and Ron & Pat Serwa of Lake Villa are still talking about their trip to see "Elvis" two weeks ago. They said his act is "really great" - who else from our area went?

Get well wishes go to Bob Huebner and Paul Pape. The Yankees will be losing their pitcher the rest of the Little League season, as Paul is recovering from an appendectomy operation. Also get well wishes go to Fern Tate who is in St. Terese Hospital. Glad to hear Jack Wells is back in good health again.

Recently returned from Tahran, Iran are Dee and Mike Hauser and their two lovely adopted Iranian children, Aaryan (a girl) and Jason (a boy). They will be spending the summer with Dee's parents Mel & Goldy Stillson of Spafford St. Antioch. After 'the summer months, Dee & Mike & family will be off to Zagreb, Yugoslovia where they will both resume their teaching careers. Look for our special on these interesting young people - coming soon -!

After returning from a weeks vacation, they swung into action by hosting a going away party for young John who will be leaving for the Army shortly. Over 75 friends and relatives stopped by to wish John good luck, and eat a volume of food (over 40 lbs of meat!). Following the dinner, they all enjoyed a song fest led by Pete Houlihan and his uke!.

A couple of lucky young men were honored with "Brothers Day" on Sunday. Goes to show them that their family thinks they are pretty special.

We all have something made of polyester by now and aren't they great! They give and take, stay pressed and can be washed. But even "miracle" fibers require care, so here are some tips: First, remember this is a 100 percent plastic fiber & highly flammable so stay away from lit cigarettes and pipessparks make large holes. Second, if you have a perspiration problem, protect the fabric. Plastic doesn't breathe so is warmer and absorbs and holds odor. Third, be careful! It tends to pill (fuzz) from surface wear and snag easily. Fourth, wash in warm not hot water, gently and dry on air or warm setting. Iron on cool setting. Washing will soften the fiber so occasionally it should be cleaned to replace body and sizing. In general, dry cleaning will preserve the life and performance of your garment. If you have any questions regarding care or repair, just call or stop in. S & S TAILORS, 950 MAIN, ANTIOCH- 395-2282, And have a good day! Carol

SKETCHING OUTDOORS....

The time for sketching outdoors is the summertime. It is the time for taking vacations to interesting and inspiring places, and the time to sit and take in these sights leisurely. When you sketch outdoors you are becoming personally acquainted with nature and natural phenomena, such as the way the constantly changing sun changes shadows. You'll see true color and color changes in perspective. You will increase your knowledge of what things really look like, thus improving your drawing ability. And you will fill your mind and your sketchbook with a lot of valuable information you will use later on in your studio work.

Sketching implies a quick summary of what is observed rather than a carefully planned and executed rendering which is drawing. The sketch is a notation of what is most important, most exciting and most inspirational in the view. It should be uninhibited, so as to get the "feel" of the place, event, or thing. Although many sketches are worthy to be framed, no sketch should be done with this in mind. Your sketches should be done with swift, free strokes, for the outdoors is teeming with movement of people and things.

Think of your sketches as "shorthand." You take "notes" of the whole scene, then of sections, then details of minute parts. Later back in your studio, you put them together to make your own original impressions of where you have been: "The Boat Ride," "At the Horse Show," "Uncle Bill's Place," "Picnic on the Beach," "Surfing in Hawaii," etc.

The sketch is more exciting more exciting than snapshot and has more personality. The snapshot remains hidden in an album, or a slide is occassionally projected on a screen, but the drawing or painting, the results of your sketching, is displayed on the wall to be a constant reminder of where you've been. Use the snapshots and slides to supplement your sketches, but do not copy them in their entirety. To sketch remains the inspiration and is aesthetically better. Let this summer be the start of a whole new activity-sketch everywhere you go and everything you see. Join a sketch class. Sketch while your husband fishes, while you babysit beside the pool, while you coffee-klutch on the patio.

Happy sketching.

St. Peter's Organizing Parish Blood Program

St. Peter's Parish is establishing a Parish Blood Program. There must be 200 pledged donors in order for this parish to qualify for the Group Assurance Plan. In this plan, when one member of a house hold donates just one pint of blood a year, any member of the family or household has access to as much blood as necessary when the need arises, without a blood fee or blood replacement:

The American Red Cross Blood Mobile will set up a 15 bed unit in St. Peter's Social Center on Sunday, July 16 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Anyone wanting to donate and is unavailable on July 16, may pledge to donate now, but give at a more convenient date at any blood donation center and specify St. Peter's code number, which would credit the pint of blood to St. Peter's account.

Committee members will be at the exits of the church after Masses this weekend to answer questions and recruit blood donors.

If family style dining in a comfortable and moderately lit spa is what you've been searching for, you need look no further than the BRAVE BULL.

Located one-half mile north of Antioch on Illinois Rte. 83, the BRAVE BULL offers a complete line of steaks (seven in all), all prepared to your personal culinary tastes.

From the seafood menu comes a varied list of offerings. Heading the list is Idaho trout, Canadian pike and special frog legs-sauteed in rich garlic butter.

Friday is a special occasion at the BRAVE BULL. Featured on the bill of fare is an appetizing selection of moderately priced fish dinners that have proven extremely popular in recent years.

The owners, Pat and Jacquie Patla, have operated the BRAVE BULL for two full decades, serving their special brand of dinners for nine years. In addition to their bountiful menu, the Patlas are extremely proud of their relish tray, well stocked with home made favorites.

From the bar the BRAVE BULL offers an extensive list of foreign and domestic wines, imported Heinekin and Lowenbrau beers, and mixed drinks done to perfection.

During the weekends the restaurant patrons are serenaded by the talents of Joe Simmer and Roy Arndt at the piano and organ.

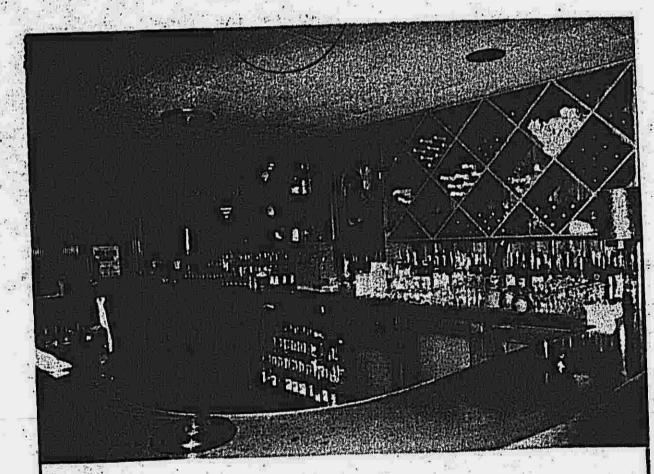

The building now occupied by the BRAVE BULL has an extremely interesting background, dating back to the days of pin-stripe suits, fedora hats and large bulges under vests. If you can start Pat talking, an evening of dining and relaxation will be brought to a fruitful ending.

By: Raymond Minor, D.V.M. . Manager of Veterinarian Services-Norden Laboratories

Since you can't ask your dog to read an eye chart, how can you be alert to any deterioration in his vision? If this is occurring, is there anything you can do about it? In discussing this situation, I'd like to make several points. First, nearly all dogs develop some cloudiness in the pupils of their eyes as they grow older.

This condition is known as nuclear sclerosis, a natural hardening of the lens fibers which reduces the light entering the eye. It results in limited vision, but not to the point of blindness.

However, another condition, cataracts, which do not transmit any light, frequently result in extremely limited vision or blindness.

A cataract is a cloudy or opaque discoloration within the lens of the eye. In an advanced cataract, the pupil may appear bluish white or grey with a mother-of-pearl sheen.

Many pet owners do not realize that their dogs have cataracts because the animals retain some degree of useful vision.

.I would recommend that at the first sign of any cloudiness, or other change, in your dog's eyes have your veterinarian check the animal.

How does the veterinarian examine the dog's eyes? The examination procedure is the same as for a small child.

They enjoyed the wonderful singing talent of Sandler and Young along with the comedy of Pat Cooper. It was truly a great evening.

It was very nice to see all the people at the Fireman's Dance last Saturday night. The cold weather didn't seem to bother anyone too much. The yearly dance gives people a chance to see and talk to all the friends they don't get to see very often.

Minnie Kostock of Prospect Avenue is a member of the Richmond Senior Citizens Club. The group is very busy getting ready for the towns centennial in which they will have an ice cream social. They recently went strawberry picking to use the berries in the booth.

Happy Anniversary last Friday to Elmer and Lucille Eberman. They celebrated with dinner at Mr. Wonderful's, along with Pat and Dick Harland and daughter Jill. After dinner the group went to the PM & L where they enjoyed "Arsenic and Old Lace."

Over 28 Years Experience

Both eyes are inspected in daylight for evidence of injuries, ocular discharge, abnormal position or movement of the eyeball.

.. The next part of the examination takes place in a dark room or stall.

In this quiet environment, free of distractions, eyeball movement is minimal and little or no restraint is needed. The darkness has a calming effect on the dog.

.. Since there are no distractions, the dog will tend to seek the light from the veterinarian's ophthalmoscope, an instrument used for inspecting the interior of the eye.

.. In an aged dog (over eight years old) the lens may appear quite opaque on examination when senile cataracts are forming. And yet, a considerable degree of useful vision remains, enough for the animal to get around without the need for surgery.

..Don't be misled into believing that cataracts are a condition associated only with old age.

..Juvenile or development

in dogs under six years of age. They are often inherited. Infectious diseases are common causes of both juvenile and senile cataracts. Glaucoma may be associated with senile cataracts.

Some veterinarians will ask the pet owner to bring the dog into the dark room, place him on the examination table and hold the animal's head during the examination.

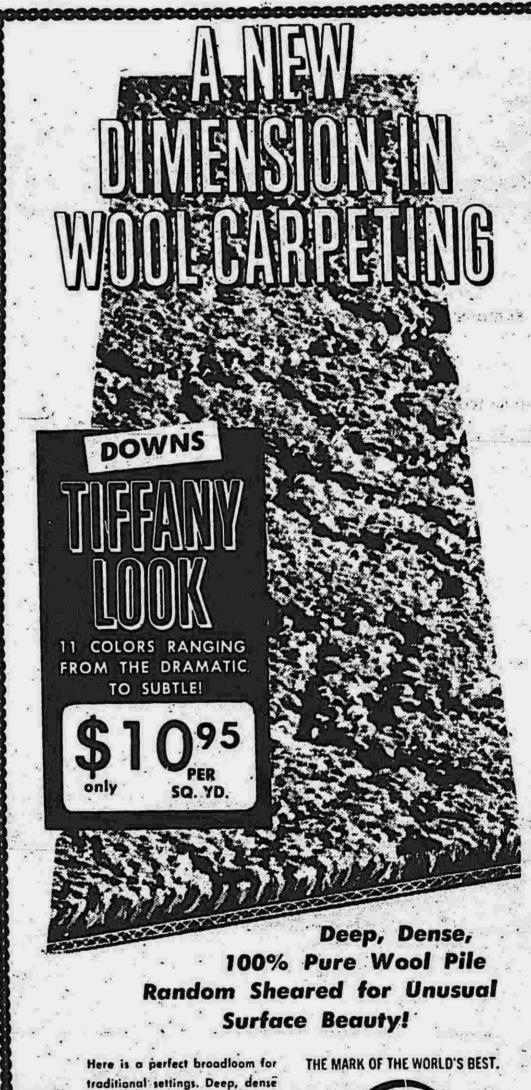

A completely opaque and nonfunctional lens can be removed surgically, in many cases with the return of good ambulatory vision,

.. The operation is generally performed by a practitioner who specializes in veterinary opthalmology, the study and treatment of diseases of the eye in animals.

.. This type of surgery is known as "elective" because it is not necessary to save the life of the animal. He can live without the operation. The veterinarian may advise against it if there is too much risk involved.

I recommend that you have your veterinarian examine your dog at least once a year, and at that time check the animal's eyes.

.. Remember that no eye infection is so insignificant as not to warrant a thorough examination. It could prevent serious problems from developing later.

"Where will I be after finishing school?" is the frequently asked question of too many high school and college folk anticipating an end to their days as students.

Perhaps a part of the answer lies in talking to people who have recently become cogs in the mechanism of the working world about what their occupation entails. Here we'd like to present the ideas of some young people who have found themselves in the world of business.

Steve Smouse has one year and a half of majoring in business administration behind him. "School was kind of boring," he says, and having completed one year at Millikin University in Decatur and a semester at Carthage College, Steve decided that working would suit him better.

Now employed at Stanley's Men's Fashions in Antioch, Steve feels that, his college experience did help him. "I think one gets more practical experience by working, but I do want to finish my education someday."

"In addition to the experience Steve gets by being involved with people, problems, and demands of each day spent in a business, there are other occurrences which couldn't be duplicated within a classroom. Some practical experience Steve couldn't have gotten at school includes his being active in helping Stan Toton and Terry Folbrick plan their new store on the Antioch shopping plaza which will open August 1. Here he's had to put his business experience to work and will actually see the results of his work when the new store opens.

When asked what college has meant to him in regard to his career, Steve sums up his philosophy of higher education. "I realize that for some occupations a degree is necessary. But for me, I want to go back and pick up the courses I want rather than working for a degree."

Farmers Invited To Agronomy Research Center

Farmers of Lake and other counties are invited to visit and tour the Northern Illinois Agronomy Research Center on Friday, July 7, 1972, according to an announcement by Ray T. Nicholas, Lake County Senior Extension Adviser.

Conducted tours will start at 8:30 a.m. and continue at frequent intervals until noon.

The Research field is located about four miles west of route

Visitors to the Research Center will have an opportunity to see and hear first-hand the results of extensive research on crop variety performance and weed control treatments. Extension specialists from the University of Illinois will be on hand in all areas of the Research farm to explain the experiments conducted, and make progress reports.

Attendance at the field day will afford farmers a first hand opportunity to receive the latest and most authoritative information on crop varieties and weed control methods.

Cooperative Project Being Planned

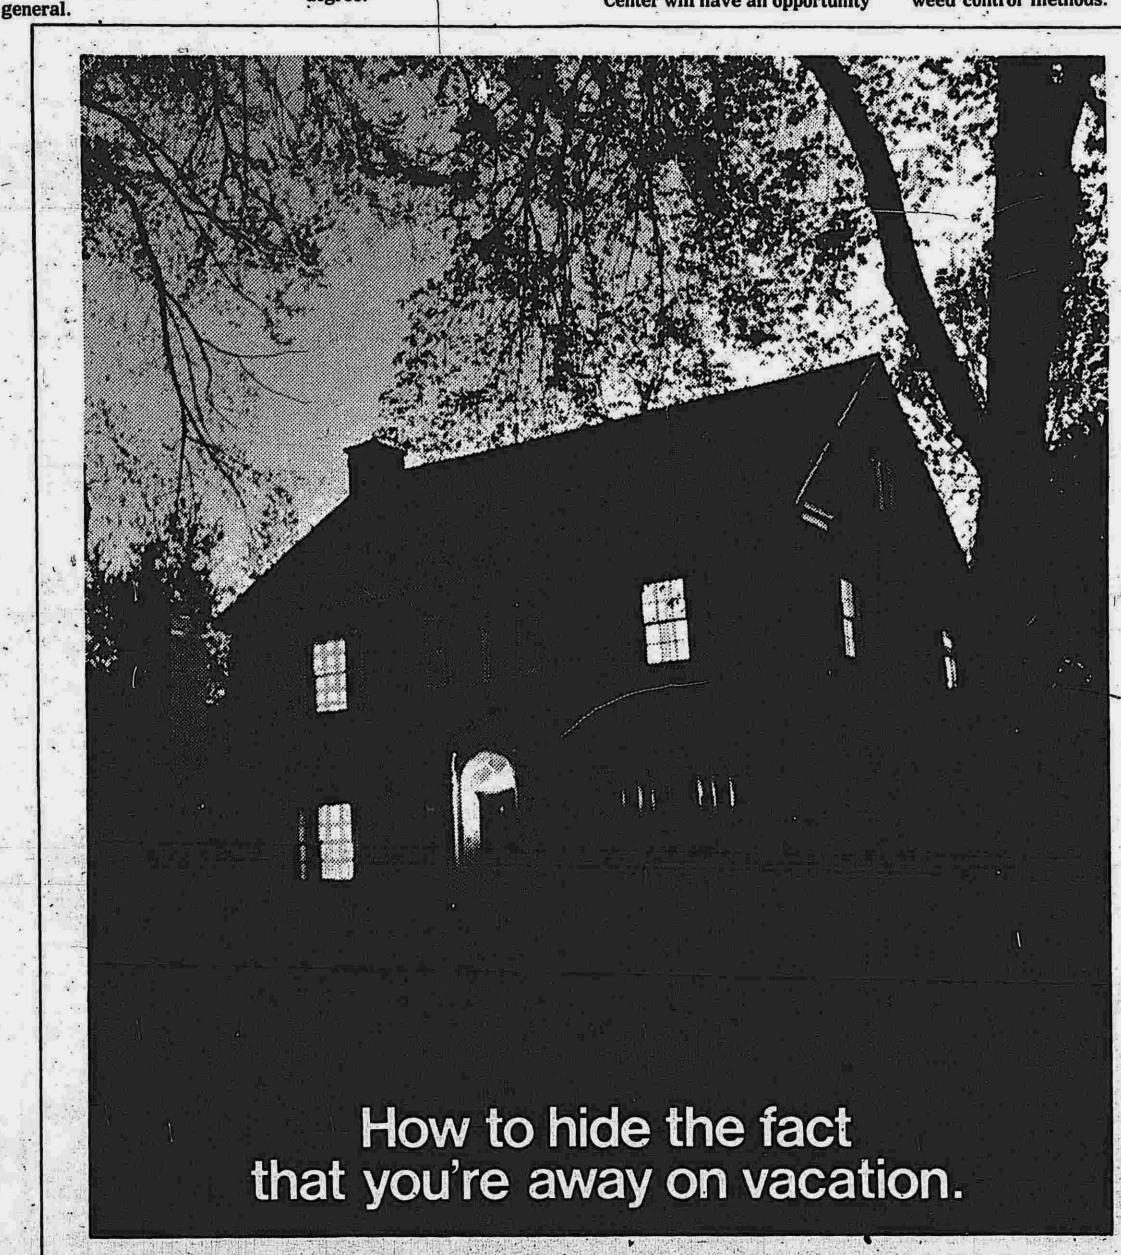

The Lake County Highway Department is cooperating with the Department of Civil Engineering of the University of Illinois, Urbana, in a unique undertaking to determine the relative performance and the maintenance costs associated with the different types and thicknesses of flexible pavements used in Lake County, Illinois.

Under a program formulated with the Public Service Committee of the County Board; Lloyd E. Murrie of Antioch, Chairman, and Edward A. C. Streed, County Superintendent of Highways, a graduate student will spend approximately three months during this summer working at the Lake County Highway Department offices collecting data on maintenance procedures, maintenance costs, and performance of flexible pavements. These data will then be analyzed, analytically and statistically, using the computer systems at the University of Illinois to determine the trends in performance and maintenance costs for the various flexible pavement designs in service in Lake

In addition to establishing the performance trends and maintenance costs of these pavements, the study will attempt to determine the interactions between traffic, subgrade conditions, drainage conditions and pavement type. Particular emphasis will be placed on pavements with stabilized base courses such as the line-flyashaggregate mixtures and cement-aggregate mixtures used in Lake County.

This study is being conducted under the direction of Dr. Ernest J. Barenberg, Professor of Civil Engineering, University of Illinois, Urbana. According to Professor Barenberg, one of the most urgent needs for effective management of our pavement systems is to develop the technology to determine the effectiveness of pavement design and maintenance procedures. This study was undertaken to develop this type of information. The Lake County Highway Department was chosen to cooperate in this study because of its progressive engineering approach to highway problems, past cooperative efforts between the Highway Department and the University of Illinois, and the availability of accurate maintenance records.

PRICKLY HEAT

Prickly heat, a rash of tiny, pink pimples amid patches of pinkish skin, is a summertime condition caused by excessive perspiration to which infants and small children are particularly susceptible. While usually confined to the neck and shoulders, prickly heat can spread to the ears, face, chest and back and can develop into little blisters which dry up and cause the rash to look tan. It is best handled by dressing your child in light, loose clothing and dusting the irritated area with cornstarch powder. However, use the powder sparingly because too much will clog pores and make the condition worse. If the rash persists for more than a few days, consult your family physician.

Man's relation to God will be brought out this Sunday in Bible Lesson-Sermon at Churches of Christ Scientist on "God".

In Psalms 18 we read that God is our strength and deliverer. From SCIENCE AND HEALTH WITH KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES by Mary Baker Eddy this citation will be read: "The Scriptures imply that God is All-in-all. From this it follows that nothing possesses reality nor existence except the diving Mind and His ideas. Everything in God's universe expresses Him."

Last Weekend Arsenic & Old Lace

"Somebody has to be a drama critic," says batty Abby Brewster (Shirley Jensen) unconvincingly defending the "tedious" occupation of her nephew during PM & L's production of Joseph Kesselring's "Arsenic and Old Lace". But one feels no drudgery in going to see this play in the capacity of a critic or otherwise. Ken Smouse has directed the play to its becoming a truly delightful rendition of an old favorite.

The hilarity begins as Mortiner Brewster (Bill Simpson) opens the window seat to find one of the twelve gentlemen victims of his aunts' batty desire to take the loneliness out of the lives of old men - by taking their lives. The humor of Mortimer's awe is surpassed only by the hilarity of the sincerity with which the old girls (Shirley Jensen and Aileen Biel) go about their work.

Don Beveroth's comic voice, the sneaky shuffle and his "kooky crook on the run" attitude of Dr. Herman Einstein would tickle the funny bone of most any drama critic and surely tantalizes the PM & L audience. He exits with a blown kiss after his humoring of monster-faced Jonathan Brewster (Robert Brundy) has brought down the house with laughter on several occasions.

Six foot. seven inch Robert Brundy plays his part well, sending a few shivers up a spine, so authentic is his face that of Boris Karloff. The production also boasts a fine stage setting. Having seen the PM & L production of "Arsenic and Old Lace" one will not forget Teddy Brewster (Tom Hausman) charging up the steps, thinking himself Teddy Roosevelt and the stairs "San Juan Hill".

'It gets better," said Director Ken Smouse after being commended after Act 1 Friday night, and he was certainly correct. As the beginning of the play drags slightly, once it gets underway, its murder and nonsense brings tears of laughter to even the most cynical drama critics.

With a Stern Eye

The pride of motherhood stirs me today, for we have just received in County Clerk's Office, warm from the press, a stack of brochures on registration and voting. This is a project we have had pending as long as I have been in office. And to have brought it finally to fruition feels good.

'All you ever wanted to know about Voting but were afraid to ask' may not look like much of a creation to the casual eye-it is only six pages of print. But it brings together in one place the various bits of the Illinois Election Code as they effect the voter. How to register, and where; how to vote and where; and the exceptions, challenges and hedges that make permanent registration not so permanent unless one is constantly alert.

These_informal_pamphlets will be disributed at the County Fair, at many of the festival days in the county, through Newcomer Clubs and Welcoming baskets--in short, everywhere that we might find folks who want to get involved with the system, we shall be spreading the word on how to do

It seems highly likely however, that as soon as we get our electorate educated, the new Election Code will take effect and sweep some of the old provisions into the ash heap. And some of them should certainly be there. At this writing the new Code has not passed the General Assembly. And word filters back that there are approximately 500 amendments waiting to be discussed and attached.

I haven't read the proposed amendments, but I have read the Code-all 323 pages of it-and have prepared a list of suggestions of my own. When you boil it all down, the purpose of elections (and the code the implements them) is to see that every citizen gets an equal voice in the selection of his or her government. And that equal voice must be safeguarded from fraud, incompetence and partisan manipulation.

All right. Starting from that premise one opens the pages and pages of minutia that govern the conduct of elections. Much of the new code is identical to the old, except that it is better organized and the contradictions have been removed. But there are a few things-

In Lake County, for instance, we register anyone who has lived at their present address for 30 days. We do this because a recent Supreme Court decision indicated that a longer residency requirement was unconstitutional. The Attorney General concurred as did Lake County's State's Attorney. With that as our authority we changed our instructions to registrars from the old 6months-in-the state requirement to one-month-in-the-precinct. The new code has reinstated the longer period. And it's too bad. Pointless as well.

Another aspect of the proposed legislation gives this County Clerk fits. It provides for a 'verification of registration' two weeks before each election. Two election judges (one of each party) must canvss the precinct a specified number of days ahead of the date, going door to door and identifying the voters in each household. Where there is no one at home, they are instructed to leave a noticae which directs the voters to bring to the County Clerk's office (or to present by mail) suitable documentation, proving their registration. If they do not do so within a given number of days, the Clerk is instructed to cancel the registrations at that address.Can you imagine the rage of a family, away on business or vacation, when they return-eager to vote-to find their registration has been cancelled? To say nothing of the problems that would arise in finding two (of the five) election judges in each of the 235 precincts willing to make such a trek? Many Lake County precincts are spread out over many a country mile; and some have well over 800 voters.

The new code continues to require that a physically incapacitated voter get the signature of his physician on the application for absentee ballot. And the two signatures (the physician's and the voter's) must still be notarized. An incredible hardship for those involved.

A physically disabled voter who is able to get to the polling place can be asisted in the booth by a friend or relative of his own choosig-or by two election judges, one of each party. Fine. But a voter with a language handicap, one who does not read English, for instance, can be helped only by the judges.

Surely someone who does not speak or read English would get far more useful assistance from a friend or relative than from two English speaking judges. This provision remains identical to that in the old Election Code-and it sems just as ludicrous as it always has.

None of the above objections, if corrected by amendment, would bred fraud, in my view. While we must protect the integrity of election process, it is equally important to make voting easy and convenient for those legally entitled to particpate. The trick, of course, is to is to get them to want to participate...

HAROLD ANDREWS TO PARTICIPATE IN AMERICAN STUDIES INSTITUTE

Mr. Harold Andrews of Antioch, Ill., a history teacherfrom Taft High School in Chicago, is one of 19 Midwestern educators who will participate in the American Studies Institute at Carthage College, June 26-July 22.

Purpose of the institute is to refresh the vitality and enlarge the comprehensiveness of secondary school teachers through a unique study program that is divided into four main:ourses to be taught by highly qualified professors.

The American Studies Institute was created after a national survey of American history teaching on the secondary school level by the Princeton Service revealed that for all their excellence, our ways of teaching need critical review and careful amendment. The Princeton Service survey noted that commendable coverage of the years 1787-1920 is generally provided by teachers of American history, but that surprisingly scant attention is paid the the post-World War One era and even less the decades following World War

It is toward the correction of this partial void that the American Studies Institute at Carthage will be directed.

IRA Champion Johnny Reimer, Caladonia, started in the front row of the 16 cars taking the green flag in the Interstates Racing Association 30 lap super modified feature at Wilmot Saturday night and won his third straight feature there leading every lap.

His lead held up through two restarts necessary when Dick Aissen, McHenry and Ron Bergsma, Richmond locked up in the 4th turn and were hit by fast time qualifier, Denny McKay, Elgin, bringing out the red flag.

On the restart, McKay's car was without brakes and he was unable to continue. As the race restarted. Jim Sullivan's car

IRA Circuit In Busy Holiday Schedule

The super modifieds and sportsman stock cars of the Interstates Racing Association face a busy holiday schedule starting Thursday night, June 27 at the Waukegan Speedway.

The IRA Supers return to: hopefully warmer weather at Waukegan this Thursday night. Last weeks race schedule was cancelled due to cold weather. On Saturday night, July 1 at the Kenosha County Speedway in Wilmot, Wisconsin, the sportsman stock car group will start a three night schedule for Triple Crown Honors in that group. The Super modifieds had their Crown Race over the May 30 Holiday period but rain carried it over to conclusion in June at the Lake Geneva Raceway where Whitey Harris, Lake villa was the over all winner.

Point Leader Jim Cmelak, Okachuee, Wisconsin will be favored to lead the group in the battle for the Crown Series Award that will include Lake Geneva Raceway on Sunday Night, July 2 and conclude at Wilmot on Monday July 3.

The Super modifieds will race in a Special Firecracker 40 lap race at Wilmot on that night. Wilmot point leaders Dick duston, Muskego; IRA Champion Johnny Reimer, Caladonia, Harris and Jim Bozeman, Waukegan will all be trying for the Firecracker win but if Denny McKay and car owner Randy Maresaloo of Kenosha, can get their super to operate on dirt the way it has been in record setting runs on asphalt speedways, there could be a new face in the Firecracker Victory Circle on Monday night.

On Tuesday night, July 4, many of the IRA cars will take part in a special race at the Capital Speedway in Oregan, Wisconsin on a half mile track racing against late model stocks. Reimer has the track record there in the Fred Nielsen super from Lake Villa. The race is not a sanctioned IRA event but will mark the second time this season IRA supers have appeared at the Capital Speedway. Reimer won the feature and set a new record there on May 29. Others expected at Capital include Jim Sullivan, Ingelside; Bob Leyland, Crystal Lake; and

Kleich Takes Feature Honors At Waukegan Speedway

Rich Kleich of Chicago brought his ex-Dick Trickle Ford Torino to the Waukegan Speedway Saturday night and walked off with the feature honors for the second time in four starts. Next weekend there will be 50-lap late model races on both Saturday and Sunday night.

Late model honors were well distributed as Lockport's Lee Schuler was the only double winner in that class. He won the trophy dash and the second heat race, but he ran over another car's coil spring in the feature and was sidelined Kleich, a 15-year veteran of short track racing, had his problems earlier in the evening. In time trials a broken suspension part gave him slow time. Repairs were made, but then a race-stopping heat race tangle re-arranged some sheet metal. He restarted after some pit work and finished second in that race.

Roger Erickson of Waukegan led for just one lap in the main before Kleich zoomed in front to stay. At ten laps the order of leaders was Kleich, Dennis Johnson of Arlington Heights. Vern Browne of Wauconda, Carl Major of Chicago and Rich Oertel of Palatine.

Browne gained second in the 14th lap and promptly an accident between Johnson and Major blocked the 3-4 turn calling for the only red flag of the race.

Jim Cossman of Waukegan, after an early spin-out, moved steadily through the field to take 4th spot behind Kleich, Browne, and Oertel. Other cars finishing on the same lap witgh the leader were Bob Delaney of Keeneyville in 5th followed in order by Major, Chuck Chadwick of Lake Zurich, Erickson and Johnson.

Major clocked the fastest time of the night with one :14.33 lap. Besides Schuler, the other preliminary race winners were Chadwick and Tom Musgrave of Mundelein.

George Dukas of Zion gained his 8th hobby feature win as he passed fellow-townsman Tom Edwards at the half-way point for the lead. Edwards, in his first start of the year, held on for second in from of Chuck Bostick of Waukegan.

Bostick was the only driver to beat Dukas in Saturday's races as he barely won the 6-lap dash in a close finish over Dukas. Bostick also won the third heat after Dukas had carried the checkered after the second.

Peterson Back In Geneva Stock Win Circle

Bob Peterson, Lake Geneva, returned to victory in the HATO Racing at the Lake Geneva Raceway Saturday night. His win was in the 25 lap Sportsman stock car feature and came over a field that did not include the threat of Paul Craddock, Round Lake in a desensatized late model or Ken Hinzpeter, Twin Lakes, who has won the last two Hato Sportsman features.

Craddock did not arrive at the track this time and no explanation was given for his absence. He had converted his late model over to compete in Sportsman' stock car racing three weeks ago when he finished fourth in the feature, had mechanical troubles last week and was not on site this past week. Hinzpeter however wasvery much in evidence. He set fourth fastest time in qualifying and in racing for the win in the second heat, crashed into the concrete wall eliminating his car for the night. In fact, it is considered doubtful if the car will be ready for the attempt to capture the "HEAD HIGH" trophy for overall best performance in the Lake Geneva Raceways "Double Header" this Friday June 30 and Saturday July 1.

Peterson took the feature race lead on the 8th lap from John Burmiester, Burlington and held off a late charge by fast time qualifier Cal Clark, Milwaukee from the 14th lap to the finish.

Clark also won a heat as he May of 1968. It was the first 16 second bracket run by any car since that time. Marish's car was removed from the track and taken to the Future Industries Shop in Antioch where the required bars were installed and he returned, received IRA certification, entered and won the 12 lap consolation race over Jim Moulis, Antioch, and Dick Heinz, Northbrook.

Dave Bliss, Algonquin won the 15 lap semi-feature after shooting by a pack slowed by the leader when his car jumped out of gear. Larry Ninneman, Milwaukee finished second and then it was Allen Kautz, Twin Lakes.

Ten lap heat races were won by Ray Steven, Richmond; Jim Moulis; Dick Heinz; Jim Bozeman and Johnny Reimer. Reimer's heat race win came after Bob Leyland, Crystal Lake had spun out of the lead and after Rob Bergsma. Reimer and McKay scrambled in the fourth turn bringing out the red flag. Two laps later, the red was out again as Leyland, Paul Cameron, Round Lake and Stan Horton, Antioch, looped in again the fourth turn. On the restart, Horton was second but spun on the final lap to move Coen and Harris into runner up and third spot.

Attendance was 3040 on the cool night that saw many blankets and snowmobile suits in the grandstand. The purse was $3,250.00.

Powers To Geneva Win

Ron Bergsma, Richmond, used all the power his wedge Plymouth could produce tonight to surge by leader Ron Marish in the 30 lap feature race at the Lake Geneva Raceway for IRA super modifieds.

He then counted on that same power and corner control of his car to keep him ahead of IRA point leader Johnny Reimer, Caladonia through to the finish. Earlier this week, Bergsma also stayed ahead of Reimer at Raceway Park in Blue Island for his first win of the season. The way he surged at the end of the straightaways could set the scene for several more wins.

Ron Marish stayed ahead of Whitey Harris, Lake Villa and Roger Otto Burlington for third spot. Jim Sullivan, Ingleside set fast time and finished next in the feature ahead of Jim Moulis, Antioch and Paul Cameron, Round Lake.

Chuck Rahn, Villa Park won a heat and then returned to win the 15 LAP SEMI+FEATURE. Other heat race wins were sc scored by Dick Aissen, McHenry; Otto and Reimer.

Cal Clark, Milwaukee scored a clean sweep in the Sportsman stock car events as he set fast time, won his heat and the 15 lap feature. Joe Greske, Franklin, won the other heat.

Attendance on the warmer night was 1420 and the purse was $1,298.00 came from 11th in point standings to 5th with the good results of racing for the night.

Gil Schilts, Delevan, who continues to lead in the points was fourth in the feature behind George Weyroach, Elkhorn.

Doc Sterken, Delevan and Jerry Straube, Burlington won the other heats while Mickey Nevylet won the 15 lap semi-feature.

In Spectator Stock Carcompetition the feature win went to Sam Grubb as he took over the lead on next to the last lap. Earlier he also won a heat race. Herb Grupe won the 12 lap semi-feature.

In spite of all the crashing among the drivers, the only injury was to a wrecker truck assistant who lost part of a finger in working the trucks wench. He was treated at the hospital and released.

Mrs. Martha Berry, the team's coach of three years, appeared heartened by the team's chances. "We'll have thirteen to fourteen meets this year," she said, "With any sort of luck we should improve on last year's finish."

The swimmers, eighty plus strong this year, are sponsored through the generosity of the State Bank of Antioch, competition is grouped in five levels and limited to those 6 through

Mrs. Berry listed several exceptional swimmers as being of great importance for a winning season: John Schmidt, a state Y.M.C.A. champ in free style or butterfly; Pat Muro, also in the same categories; Ed Berry, second in state competition in the breast stroke and a good individual medleyist; Kim Klopp in the backstroke; Jerry Schmidt in freestyle; and Mary St. Pierre in individual medley and backstroke. All are from the surrounding area and give the team a true "local" flavor.

Antioch Swimmers In First Conference Meet

The Antioch Swim Team had their first conference meet of the season on Saturday, June 24 at Plum Grove. Despite the cold weather of the past week, which meant very little swim team practice, the team showed up in full and swam an excellent meet. Our divers showed good form, especially considering it was the first time they had been on the board this year.

Dave Berry came home with three first place ribbons; Pat Muro, Ed Berry, and Mary Ann Cilik each took first in two events. Other first place winners were Teddy White, Rod Taplin, Mary St. Peirre, Judy Houghton, and Sue Berry.

The final score of the meet was Antioch - 146 and Plum Grove - 26. The Antioch Swim Team is sponsored by the State Bank of Antioch. The first home meet of the year will be Wednesday, July 5, at the Antioch Aqua Center.
